

Americans Don't Belong Under Bed, Wringing Hands

By BILL CORUM
INS Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Today, I am chock-full of annoyance and anger.

I'm mad. I'm burned up. It seems to me that in this country of yours and mine, we're acting like a lot of jittery old maids.

We Americans are acting as if we were afraid. We are behaving hysterically and foolishly about something that hasn't yet happened—and may never happen.

A friend of mine walked into the apartment last evening to keep a dinner date with me. He was looking quite fit and snappy. I told him so.

"Well," he said, "I figured that if we were coming to the end of the world, I might as well face it looking my best, so I went out and bought three new suits and a couple of overcoats."

He wasn't altogether kidding. I know some people who are moving their valuables out of lock-boxes in New York and putting them in similar boxes elsewhere. What they think they're winning would be difficult for even them to tell, I imagine. It's hard to believe that Stalin has sent them any blueprints of his plans.

Others, maybe only a few but some, are selling property here to buy houses elsewhere, giving up apartments to find other apartments in out-of-the-way towns and cities.

In our world of sports, the calm and carefree approach to a contest is looked on as the first sign of confidence and probable victory.

Tunney slept before his fights. Dempsey paced and was eager, but eager to be at the job at hand. Louis read the funnies and kidded with those around him.

Ruth and the Yankees of his time, the most dangerous and devastating baseball team in history, took their big games and World's Series in such even and joyous stride, that you would have thought the contests provided a holiday. And for them they did.

The football teams of Knute Rockne skyarked, within reason, before their major tests. But could anybody who saw them in action possibly suggest that they weren't ready for the question?

From what we hear on radios and read in newspapers today in this country, you would think that the Russians had no fear, no problems. That the Red Chinese were one of the most devastating and powerful forces the world has ever known.

We hear about Russia's hundred armored divisions as if a hundred divisions was the most fearsome military might that history ever has known.

Nobody mentions that on June of 1918, Germany had 238 divisions on the Western Front. And lost. That four months later, they were hightailing it for the Rhine.

In the "bulge" of the Ardennes, a general said something about nuts.

World War III, or no—and probably no—Americans don't belong under a bed, wringing their hands.

REDS RESUME PROBING; NEW FLANKING THRUST EXPECTED

UN Airmen Stepping Up Bombing

90,000 Chinese Mass Near Seoul

TOKYO, Jan. 17—Red vanguards began probing U. S. Eighth Army positions in South Korea's vital western corridor today and a United Nations military spokesman in the central area indicated a new enemy flanking drive was expected.

Superforts blasted three major Communist transport centers as they paced Allied air strikes at enemy troops, arteries and supply bases all the way up to Manchuria's Yalu river border.

The incessant aerial punches were coordinated with tank-led UN ground patrol thrusts designed to keep huge Red invasion forces off balance.

But a Wednesday night communique from the Eighth Army's field headquarters disclosed that advance units of some 90,000 Chinese Red troops, massed below Seoul, started jabbing toward UN lines during the day.

The bulletin told of "minor" patrol actions by "small enemy groups" in the west sector where American troops Tuesday had hurled the Chinese out of Suwon, 17 air miles south of Seoul, the Communist-held capital.

NO ENEMY ACTION was reported Wednesday from the central or east sectors, the communique said, though one 75-man Red group was shelled by "friendly artillery" in the east-central area.

A field dispatch from the central front, where Eighth Army forces had made a 25-mile strategic withdrawal from the Wonju bulge to the Chungju vicinity, said UN troops continued strong probing patrols in that sector.

The message, received in Tokyo at 8:56 Wednesday night, added that there was "very little" (Continued on Page Two)

Sales Tax Pondered By City

The possibility of placing a tax on gross sales in Circleville was discussed by city council Tuesday.

The city fathers tinkered with the idea as a method of supplying funds to raise the pay of police and firemen.

The gross tax would not require use of sales tax stamps, but would be imposed on total sales of merchants, reflecting back to the consumer in the form of higher prices.

Requests for pay raises to meet cost of living increases were submitted to the legislators Tuesday by the men in the blue uniforms. The requests were in letter form and contained the signatures of all members of both fire and police departments.

The matter was turned over to the finance committee for investigation. The committee was instructed to report back to council next meeting.

Originally police had planned to ask for a $50 a month increase, bringing a patrolman's salary to $250 a month. The amount was stricken from the letter submitted to council, however, because, according to one officer, "it appeared too demanding."

Councilman George Crites informed his colleagues that they could look for a similar request to be submitted next meeting by the board of public utilities to raise the pay of employees of the water and sewage departments.

Concerning the police and fire raise, Councilman Ray Anderson commented:

"The fact is that a pay raise is needed. The take-home pay of these men is only about $160 a month. I am not in favor of an income tax to raise the money, but I think that a gross sales tax, a small one, would do the trick. And it wouldn't hurt anyone."

Crites, chairman of the finance committee, said the tax probably would be a fraction of one percent of gross sales in the city. Collection would be based on state sales tax returns filed quarterly by vendors.

"Exactly what percent a such a tax would be, I can't say," said Crites.

He said he intended to check the report of gross sales filed in the county auditor's office and report back to city council next meeting on the percentage that could be imposed to raise the necessary funds.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt was instructed to prepare pay raise ordinances for police, firemen and public utility employees. The ordinances are to be presented next meeting of council. Amounts of the raises will be left blank, to be filled in by council.

One councilman indicated privately that pay raises will be forthcoming, only the amounts are in doubt.

Fire Truck 'Given' City

Panel Job Slated To Carry Gear

Circleville fire department acquired a new panel truck Tuesday night at a cost to the city of $1 a year.

Offer of the truck was made by Hadden Chevrolet local dealer, with "no strings attached."

"You can have the truck either on loan or leased for a dollar a year," Manager Ned Hadden said. "I have a panel truck on hand now. If you don't take it, I have two other persons who want to buy it."

Boomed Councilman E. L. Montgomery: "I move we accept it."

The motion was carried in record time.

"Now," said Montgomery to Fire Chief Talmer Wise, "tell us what you want to use it for."

WISE EXPLAINED that the department had been clamoring for a panel truck for several years. He said it was needed to carry the department's extra equipment, such as the inhalator and light generator.

The equipment up to now has been transported in pint-sized station wagon owned by the chief.

Under the lease, title to the truck will be retained by the Hadden firm, but maintenance and insurance on it will be paid by the city.

Chief Wise also informed council that he had contacted fire department heads of Lancaster, Washington C. H. and Columbus on the possibilities of forming mutual assistance pacts with them.

Such a pact now exists between Circleville and Chillicothe.

The fire chief reported that action in the three cities was (Continued on Page Two)

ESA BOSS MAY GET SACK

Prompt Wage-Price Curbs Being Hinted In Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Highest administration officials said today that President Truman has ordered prompt application of price-wage controls even if it means dismissal of Economic Stabilizer Alan Valentine.

Some sources reported that Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson has recommended Valentine's replacement and that such a shakeup in the government's stabilization team may be announced at any time.

These sources said Mr. Truman has concurred in a decision to look for a successor to the former University of Rochester president who was brought into the government last Fall, but has been under fire in Congress for "delays" in the stabilization program.

Thus far only Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture

Association and former head of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, has been mentioned as possible new director of the Economic Stabilization Agency.

NEWS OF THE impending ESA shakeup came as the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that retail food prices soared to the highest level on record last month and are heading to a new all-time high during January.

The new high stood at 218.9 percent of the 1935-39 average, one percent above the previous peak of July 15, 1948.

(See special story on Page 5.) Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle fears a food price rise of seven to ten points in the next 60 days unless the government acts promptly.

He favors an immediate price freeze, but Valentine has opposed such action on grounds that the ESA is not staffed to enforce it. Valentine's "go slow" policy apparently is frowned on by Wilson.

Johnston has had considerable experience in the capital, although not in government service. An electrical manufacturer in Spokane, he spent four years in Washington during the last war as president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

The dapper motion picture executive, a Republican candidate for senator in the state of Washington in 1940, has also been active in the industrial relations field. He recently arranged a secret meeting in New York of leading industrialists and union leaders which was attended by Wilson.

The defense mobilizer is expected to discuss the price-wage picture in some detail tonight in a radio broadcast from Philadelphia.

Aspirin Brings Thugs Headache

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—A small bottle of aspirin gave two bandits a big headache in Chicago today.

The two—identified as Harold Olson, 23, and Eville Burdick, 22—were arrested by police who said they caught them robbing a drugstore.

The store owner, Herbert Harris, 60, sold the aspirin to his son, Kenneth, 37, while the stick-up was in progress. The bandits had told him to wait on customers since they were in a hurry.

Kenneth sensed the trouble, pocketed the aspirin and walked outside where he telephoned police.

We Really Need This Legislation

COLUMBUS, Jan. 17—A bill before the Ohio Legislature today would have the county pay your medical expenses if you are bitten by a rabid human.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. John Lynch (D-Mahoning), would give the same protection from human bites that now is given in cases where a person is bitten by a rabid dog or other animal.

Air Chief Says U.S. Cannot Hope To Prevent Attack On America

IN KOREA, Jan. 17—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Airforce chief of staff, said today America does not have and could not hope to have an air defense capable of preventing attacking enemy planes from penetrating to targets in the United States.

The top American air general, making a flying inspection tour of the Korean front, declared that the major part of an enemy air raiding force could get through to objectives in the U. S. mainland.

Vandenberg told front-line war correspondents that if the U. S. Airforce were able to shoot down 20 percent of enemy planes striking at America, this would be an "extraordinary job."

"Unhappily, attrition and counter-attack are the only answers," the general said.

Turning to the Korean war, Vandenberg declined to express an opinion as to whether the Red supply bases in Manchuria should be bombed.

He indicated the political decision against such attacks prevents the most effective use of air power in the struggle against the Chinese invaders of Korea.

18 1/2-YEAR COMPROMISE OF LITTLE IMPORT

Educator Says 18-Year-Old Draft Looks Like Good Idea

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—A leading educator today supported the Defense Department's proposal to draft 18-year-olds and warned that it might be "disastrous" to ban them from being sent overseas until they are 19.

Dr. Karl Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, told the Senate preparedness subcommittee that he is opposed to the compromise suggestion that draft inductions be started at 18 and one-half years.

Endorsing the Defense Department's plan to draft 18-year-olds for 27 months of training and service, he said:

"I would not stop at 18 and one-half as some in Congress have suggested. The important thing seems to me to be the stage in the young man's career—the break between high school and college—not the matter of a few months more or less in age."

When asked about the proposal to ban use of the 18-year-olds overseas until they reach their 19th birthday, Compton replied:

"IT SEEMS TO ME so impossible to foretell what we'll be up against six months or a year from now that it would be bad and might be disastrous to adopt a plan that does not have in it quite a lot of flexibility."

The educator, added, however, that he would not send 18-year-olds out of the country "unless we were in an emergency so severe that it had to be done."

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and top officers of the three services are scheduled to testify later.

Chairman Johnson, (D) Texas, of the Senate subcommittee which is developing the testimony, said he will ask President Truman for the new policy on manpower which Labor Secretary Tobin said yesterday has been approved.

Tobin said the policy statement is a "restricted document," but he saw no reason why the subcommittee should not be let in on the secret.

Educators who are due on the witness stand today include Dr. Detlev W. Bronk of Johns Hopkins university; Dr. Harold Dods of Princeton university; Dr. J. P. Baxter of Williams college, and Dr. Leonard Carmichael of Tufts college.

Highlights of new testimony before the subcommittee:

1. Disclosure by Robert C.

Goodwin, defense manpower chief, that job controls may have to be re-imposed to assure defense factories getting four million additional workers in 1951.

2. Warning by Tobin that most of these new workers will have to be housewives 35 years old or more. He said a new program to establish day care centers for children is in the offing and it may free younger housewives for defense jobs.

3. Refusal of Tobin to endorse non-military service features of the new manpower program.

He stressed he has not seen the details but he said it will be a difficult program to administer and "may not be a sound one."

Tobin testified that industrial deferments for 18-year-olds will be "practically nil" because few boys of that age have developed "critical skills."

City Income Tax Curb Faces Fight In Assembly

COLUMBUS, Jan. 17—A half-dozen Ohio cities marshaled their legal forces today to combat a bill introduced in the Ohio senate which would outlaw municipal income taxes.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Charles Carney (D-Mahoning), a Youngstown labor official, would pre-empt this field of taxation for the state.

If adopted, the measure would wreck the financial structure of his own Youngstown as well as other cities which rely on income taxes—Columbus, Toledo, Dayton, Springfield and Grandview.

Meanwhile, the senate highways committee recommended for passage a bill to extend the use of 1931 auto license tags through 1952, '53 and possibly '54. The substitute bill recommended unanimously would use both plates this year, and continue their use through ensuing years in conjunction with a windshield sticker.

The measure differed from Governor Lausche's recommendation, which was that one plate be used this year; the same plate with a sticker used in '52; the second plate issued in '53, and a second sticker validate the '53 plate in 1954. Lausche contends that the plates, a and particularly the paint, will not stand up beyond two years.

EACH YEAR The old plates are used will save 1,500 tons of scarce sheet steel for the war effort. In addition, the use of stickers will represent a savings of about $475,000 a year over the cost of new tags.

The house received 28 new bills—making 76 introduced in the lower chamber so far. The deadline for introducing bills in the house is Feb. 13.

The new bills included measures to require bus license tags for trackless trolleys; to establish a division of alcoholism in the state health department; an educational FEPC bill, and a bill to establish a ten-member (Continued on Page Two)

Schools Set Lunch Plan

Assurance Given For Next Year

Completion of Atwater elementary school will pave the way for a school lunch program in Circleville.

Superintendent Frank Fischer told Circleville board of education Tuesday the new building will free three rooms in the system for classroom use.

In view of the fact that an additional two rooms will be needed for classes next Fall, the five-room new elementary school now under construction will provide the additional two rooms plus three additional ones.

"My survey," Fischer said, "proves there will be room for a cafeteria in September if the board wants it."

Backed by Board Member James I. Smith, the administrator pointed out that two rooms in the Corwin Street building known as the "social rooms" might be used for the lunchroom program.

The board, as a followup to Fischer's implied suggestion, invited Mrs. Alfred Gabriel, home economics teacher in the high school, to look over the situation and make suggestions.

Separate Bill Plan On Budget Being Readied

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—The House Appropriations Committee virtually assured all anti-Communist funds asked by President Truman by planning separate arms and non-military omnibus appropriations bills.

The separate bill plan was announced by Committee Chairman Cannon, (D) Mo. It will give economy-minded legislators a chance to work on non-defense funds without trimming anything from the U. S. armament or foreign military aid funds.

Cannon said he plans to put the non-defense appropriation measure through the House by March 25. The military and foreign aid funds will be handled in a separate omnibus bill, which probably will not see House action before May or June.

Plane Wreck Being Probed

SPOKANE, Jan. 17—Federal and state officials today searched the charred wreckage of a twin-engine Northwest Airlines plane for clues to the cause of a crash in which 10 persons died.

Seven passengers and three crew members were killed yesterday when the Martin 202 transport plunged to earth and burned on a farm 20 miles west of here.

the enemy contact" during the day.

It said a UN military source described the situation along the central sector as "very similar to that of late November when the enemy launched his Chongchon river offensive."

The Chongchon river push by massive Chinese forces led to the enemy's recapture of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, the subsequent sweep down across Parallel 38 and the second Communist capture of Seoul.

The Allied Chongchon river defense line was abandoned after the Chinese had plunged around its inland east flank down the middle of the peninsula.

A similar effort by North Korean and Chinese hordes to drive around the Eighth Army's inland wing in South Korea was frustrated by UN troops in the 16-day battle of the Wonju bulge, during which thousands of Reds were killed.

B-29 SUPERFORTS of the U. S. Far East Airforce, ranging over Korea's main rail-highway route that parallels the west coast, battered the key hubs of Kaesong and Chongju with 176 tons of bombs. The twin visual raids were executed during Wednesday's daylight hours.

This double punch followed a 76-ton pre-dawn lambasting of Pyongyang, North Korea's Communist capital, by another group of the four-engine Superforts.

Kaesong, just south of Parallel 38, lies 33 miles northwest of Seoul, Red-occupied South Korean capital. Chongju is 52 miles northwest of Pyongyang, astride the vital main artery slanting down the Korean peninsula from Manchuria.

Before Wednesday's day-break, night bombers blasted Red troop and supply convoys moving between Manchuria's Yalu river boundary and the Seoul area.

These incessant air blows hindered the reinforcement and supply of a 90,000-man Chinese army poised below Seoul.

The sustained UN air campaign, was joined by carrier-borne U. S. Navy planes.

A Navy announcement said Task Force 77 planes from the Carrier Philippine Sea "destroyed a large supply concentration near Suwon" Monday.

AT THE SAME time, Corsairs and Skyraiders of Task Force 77 joined land-based planes in hammering at large North Korean and Chinese concentrations on Korea's mountainous central front.

The Navy pilots reported hitting about 8,000 enemy troops hiding in houses just north of the new UN line protecting the vital mid-Korean communications center of Chongju, 25 miles south of Wonju.

The Corsairs and Skyraiders poured jellied gasoline and fragmentation bombs on the enemy hideouts. A dispatch from the Philippine Sea said "numerous fires were left raging in the area."

Yank Surgeon Found Guilty In Burma Trial

RANGOON, Jan. 17—Dr. Gordon Seagrave, 53-year-old American surgeon and missionary, was convicted today by a special burmese tribunal on two of three charges of high treason. He was sentenced to six years of "rigorous" imprisonment.

Dr. Seagrave, author of two best sellers, was found guilty in the first instance of "encouraging, harboring and comforting the enemy in Burma" for alleged help to Karen rebels.

The second charge on which he was convicted was that he supplied medical equipment to the enemy.

He was acquitted of the third and major charge of waging war against the Union of Burma.

The famed "Burma surgeon" was ordered to serve six years on the first charge and an additional year's sentence was imposed for the second offense. The tribunal ruled, however, that the sentences may be served concurrently.

Dr. Seagrave through the trial, which lasted almost three months, steadfastly declared that he was not guilty.

The committee to suggest reconfiguration of all state liquor laws.

The house tabled, by a standing vote, a proposal by Rep. Joseph Avellone (D-Cuyahoga) to cut the number of house standing committees from 22 to 18.

Avellone contended that the membership had been "talking about streamlining" and that consolidation of committees would give them a chance to do something about it.

Majority Leader Saxbe (R-Champaign) answered Avellone

by pointing out that the average committee load of a house member was less than three committee memberships, which Saxbe said was not too heavy a burden. The motion then was tabled on motion of Rep. Roy Longenecker (R-Wood).

THE BILL to establish the alcoholism unit in the health department, introduced by Rep. Michael Damas (D-Lucas), is the bill drafted by the commission to study chronic alcoholism set up by the last legislature.

It would seek cooperation of hospitals in the out-treatment of alcoholic patients and eventually establish a dozen or so "rehabilitation farms" for the treatment of alcoholics who required sterner treatment. Commitment to the farms could be either voluntary or by the courts.

Cost of the program, estimated at $300,000 for the first biennium, would be defrayed by use of one-tenth of one percent of the state's revenue on liquor and beer.

The educational FEPC bill, introduced by Rep. A. G. Herman (R-Auglaize) could be the answer of the conservative faction to two compulsory FEPC measures already introduced.

The bill to eventually recodify all liquor statutes proposed a ten-member group—five senators and five representatives—to study all the liquor laws. Cost of the study would be paid out of a $25,000 appropriation which was provided by a section of the measure.

THE MUTUAL assistance pacts are being pushed by state Civil Defense heads as a protective measure in the event of an enemy air attack in a third world war. The pacts would be effective in any fire emergency calling for outside aid, however.

Wise also asked council to appropriate $186 to pay for a foamite nozzle. He said the money had been appropriated last year, but reverted back to the general fund when the nozzle failed to arrive at the end of the year.

"Now it's here, and there's no money to pay for it," the chief said.

Link Trainer, Dynamometer Are Loaned To CAP

Circleville's newly-formed Civil Air Patrol unit soon should be able to give Link trainer instruction and two-way radio work.

Circleville board of education, which purchased the trainer and a dynamometer as war surplus property several years ago, agreed Tuesday to loan the equipment to the local unit.

The Link trainer is a mechanical device resembling the cockpit of an airplane and is used to give instrument instruction.

According to Warren Harmon of Elsea Airport, where the unit will be based, the dynamometer is an instrument which is used in the operation of a two-way radio system.

The board agreed to loan out the equipment as long as it is not needed for school use.

Bank Official Gives Self Up

MONTREAL, Jan. 17—A 21-year-old teller, hurried on charges he stole $10,000 of his bank's money, returned to Montreal yesterday, gave himself up to police and handed them $4,200.

The rest of the money, Henry Ripka was quoted as telling authorities, he spent during a six-week spree with a companion in the United States. He said fun spots he hit included Detroit, Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York. He was held for trial.

Washington Meet Booked

Washington Township Home and School Association will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday.

Feature of the meeting will be presentation of an American flag to the Washington Township school by Circleville American Legion.

Main speaker for the program will be Judge William D. Radcliff of Pickaway County common pleas court.

Auxiliary Patrol Classes Meet

Ashville and Circleville state highway patrol auxiliary classes met Tuesday in Circleville for their first training program.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said he expects a total of nearly 30 men to be enrolled in the courses.

Both groups are to train together, meeting for instruction every Tuesday in Circleville.

The governor said one of the most potent evils which flows from gambling syndicates is "the establishment of a dynasty of racketeers whose powers over local law enforcement agents is greater than that of the citizenry itself."

Commenting on public officials who often permit illegal operations to flourish in their areas, Lausche threatened to use his power to remove the mayor of Ironton.

Lausche said he had that power in mind when he discussed with the committee a new club, the Colonial Inn in Ironton, which runs busses to West Virginia and Kentucky for patrons. He added that there are slot machines in operation in back rooms of the club.

"The mayor of Ironton better get the place closed," he said.

Plant To Build New Sabrejets

COLUMBUS, Jan. 17 — Officials at the North American aviation plant in Columbus announced today that additional production of the Airforce F-86 sabre jet will be started in the Ohio plant of the California-owned firm.

J. L. Atwood, company president, said a gradual increase in employment would be realized while tooling and preliminary work for the new project begins.

The airplane to be produced will be an advanced model of the F-86 Sabrejet which holds the official world speed record of 670 miles per hour.

Schools Set Lunch Plan

conditions in the high school building, the classroom plan for the city in 1951 has been tentatively rearranged by the superintendent.

According to his suggested plan, Corwin Street building would house only 15 classrooms next year instead of the 18 in operation this year.

To complete this operation, Fischer eliminated the sixth grade entirely from the school, placing the three sixth grades at Franklin Street, centrally located.

A new sixth grade will be needed next Fall also, and Fischer tentatively proposed that it be located in Walnut street school.

High Street school is operating with a sixth grade this year, meaning, if the plan is put into operation, that sixth grades will be located in High Street, Franklin Street and Walnut Street schools.

"These older people are more able to walk further," Fischer explained his relocation plan, "and none of them will have too far to walk."

"This will do away with transportation by bus." The city board during the last several years has been transporting first graders from the north end to classes because of crowded conditions of the schools in their districts.

In addition, one extra junior high school room will be put into operation in Corwin Street school next year if the plan is carried through.

Worker Burned In Accident

George Rose, 26, of 219 Pearl street, suffered chemical and steam burns early Wednesday while at work in Circleville Container Corp.

Dr. E. L. Montgomery, who treated the man in Berger hospital, said Rose suffered burns in his right eye, face, neck and chest, although none was too serious.

The man reportedly was burned while putting chemicals into a vat in the plant. He was admitted to the hospital at 3:50 a. m. Wednesday.

the enemy supply routes is the next best method, he said, and tactical support of frontline troops is the least effective of the available Airforce actions.

Vandenberg said that at present he would "venture to guess that there probably aren't any atom bomb targets in Korea."

He added: "Areas in China could be effectively attacked by the atom bomb."

The American air chief made this statement after declaring that U. S. airmen and planes "can stand up anywhere."

"The Airforce is in tip-top shape," Vandenberg said, "and American airplanes have proven their superiority over the best the Reds could put in the skies."

He recalled that in Korea, U. S. F-80 and F-86 jet fighters and even World War II propeller-driven Mustangs have knocked down Soviet-built MIG-15 jets.

4 Lawsuits Dismissed In Local Court

Four separate lawsuits against Jean Slavi and growing out of an auto collision in 1947 have been dismissed in Pickaway County common pleas court after out of court settlement.

The cases arose out of a fatal two-car collision at the intersection of Routes 56 and 159. The autos were driven by Jean Slavi and William Yowler, who was killed in the accident.

Plaintiffs in the cases settled were Phillip Tiffany, Frank Tiffany, Mary Ann Tiffany and Georgia F. Yowler. The suits were dismissed with prejudice to the defendant.

Also settled and dismissed was a suit filed by Charles T. Leasure against John Eshelman and Sons and Les Riehl.

The case grew out of an accident July 26, 1943, in which Leasure claims he fell 17 feet head downward from a box car he was helping unload at the Eshelman plant here. Plaintiff's petition asked $100,000 damages for permanent injuries he claims resulted from the accident.

Vandenberg credited the quality of American planes and superior flying ability of U. S. pilots for this achievement.

He expressed the opinion that the MIGs encountered in the Korean war were flown by Communist Chinese rather than Russian airmen.

He said the Far East Airforce comprises personnel and planes superior to anything America had in World War II.

"We do not go backwards in the Airforce," he observed.

Separate Bill Plan On Budget Being Readied

the non-defense omnibus bill. Included in this measure will be civilian activities for which President Truman requested $22.5 billion.

The military-foreign aid bill will be by far the largest of the two bills because the President asked almost $72 billion in this category. The President's request included $60.97 billion for the military services and $10.9 billion for foreign aid.

Cannon said two bills are necessary because the Defense Department will not be ready to furnish detailed estimates of what it needs until April 1.

Both measures will contain funds for the 1952 fiscal year which begins Jan. 1. Still another appropriation measure will be enacted earlier in the session, but this one will contain funds for the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

The President is submitting soon a request for another $11 billion for the military, in addition to the $43 billion already appropriated for the current year for the armed forces.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Harding College

Many events of the past few weeks and months have disturbed and alarmed the American people. Some of the calmest among my acquaintances are, for the first time in their lives, downright pessimistic.

But this column is written after a swing through several midwestern industrial areas and the things seen and heard would strengthen anybody's confidence in the USA.

America has potentially the brain power, the industrial might and the moral strength to become unconquerable. I was never more certain of that.

It will require high calibre leadership to properly channel these elements, but it can be done. In direct circumstances they would somehow mobilize themselves. Last week I spent three days talking to some of the top industrial executives in America and found them already subordinating every other interest to the growing urgent problem of making this nation militarily strong.

A FULL DAY was spent at the big La Grange (Illinois) plant of General Motors' electro-motive division where 11,000 men and women employees and an ingenious management team are daily performing production miracles.

As I walked through the clattering, tumultuous buildings housing Electro-Motive's interconnected assembly lines and saw huge streamliner diesel locomotives rising out of the mile-long jungles of automotive and electromotive parts, it seemed impossible that there could be any strict organization, any pattern or disciplined order whatsoever in all this ebbing and flowing commotion.

But as I paused to closely watch the activities of a unit of men at work and noted the precise movement of materials into their particular orbit of action, then turned my eyes here and there and became aware of the same thing happening all about me, a thrilling tingle began to creep up the muscles of my back.

Revealed in bold relief was the miraculous rhythm controlling the whole sweep of activity in this sprawling giant of mass production.

Millions of parts—for the powerful diesel motors, the big copper electrogenerators, and the sleek locomotive bodies in which they ride—are manufactured in this La Grange plant. It even makes the greater part of the thousands of machines on which the locomotive parts are manufactured. Loads of raw materials flow into the plant throughout the day. Astonishingly, every two hours there emerges a brightly painted, streamlined, diesel locomotive.

The Psychological Corporation has just concluded a nationwide study which revealed that 73 percent of the people appreciate the part such big industries are playing in improving the American living standard and as bulwarks of our military strength.

THESE PEOPLE say they want the big companies encouraged or at least not molested by government. They thus disagree with those government officials and politicians who are constantly attacking and harassing big business and industry, apparently for political purposes.

With my visit to the GM locomotive factory freshly in mind I doubt if even a Socialist planner could go through any one of our country's several thousand such big plants without seeing and understanding clearly that they are the pacemakers and the

Council Mulls Over Southend Playground Idea; Lease Sought

Circleville city council Tuesday was asked to take over a project to provide a playground for the southend.

The request was made by two representatives of the local Chamber of Commerce, T. O. Gilliland and Charles Glitt.

Gilliland explained to the city fathers that rough grading of a southend playground site has already been accomplished by the chamber, leaving "only some surface grading to be done."

The site has been offered to the city on a lease for $1 a year by John Eshelman. Council so far has balked at leasing the very sinew and muscle of American progress.

While the big companies have been having their swiftest growth, the little ones have multiplied.

There were 3,200,000 business and industrial units three years ago; today there are nearly 4,000,000. The big ones make business and customers for smaller ones; in fact, General Motors buys from more than 100,000 smaller companies.

At Electro-Motive's La Grange plant, as elsewhere in American industry, shrewd management and sound operational policy have directly improved the lot of employees.

AVAILABLE AT Electro-Motive is a splendid hospital, a cafeteria which serves 2400 meals in 12 minutes (soup 8 cents, Salisbury steak dinner 55 cents), showers and lockers, recreational facilities, free movies, insurance, pension benefits, etc.

Outside the plant as I departed after addressing its 1500 foremen stood 3500 automobiles waiting to carry their employee owners to comfortable homes.

Communism cannot win American men and women like these. And backed up by our great American industries our nation will not easily be conquered by any military force.

WEAK IRAN

ORIENTAL intrigue, which is another name for political and personal interference, is without doubt in large degree responsible for Iran's cancellation of the contract with top American engineering management firms to improve and modernize the economic life of that Middle Eastern land. In view of the enormous strategic importance of oil-rich Iran, with its access to the Persian Gulf, this is discouraging news.

Enlightened opinion in Iran, under the leadership of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, sought under American professional guidance to improve health, sanitation, communications, manufacturing, agriculture, power and other facilities. Iran is a backward state. To correct its inertia, 11 American engineering firms made exhaustive studies and came up with a seven-year plan of development, on which Anglo-Iranian oil royalties, amounting to about $45,000,000 per annum, were to be spent.

Max Thornburg, vice president of Overseas Consultants, Inc., as the American group is called, asserts at Tehran that the economic plan was "doomed from the start by Persian political interference." When a professional soldier of high reputation, Gen. Razmara, Iranian chief of staff, became Prime Minister, it was hoped that interference would cease. The Premier tried his hand at drastic measures with negative results.

Dismissal of American engineering advisers does not mean that their development plan will be abandoned, but if progress could not be made under their management, it is improbable that coherent work will be done without them. The first project, under President Truman's "Point Four" program is also being undertaken in Iran, in the fields of agriculture, health and education. American equipment is being sent there, and the Export-Import Bank has granted a loan of $25,000,000.

Tehran newspapers charge widespread graft in the handling of Iranian planning funds. In the absence of modern accounting methods, Mr. Thornburg asserts that none knew what was being done with the allotted sums. Meanwhile, Soviet broadcasters along Iran's common frontier of 1,500 miles with Russia fan agitation and discontent. In the defense of the free world against Communist imperialism, Iran is one of the weakest spots.

These Days

Altogether, between July 1, 1945, and June 30, 1950, the American taxpayer expended, after taking repayments into account, close to $26 billion in foreign aid. This amounts to about $172 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Of the $26 billion, Great Britain received $5.9 billion; France, $3.7 billion; Germany, $2.9 billion; Italy, $1.9 billion.

During this five-year period, China received $1.7 billion. Regarding this figure, it would be interesting to see a breakdown as to precisely what China received. For instance, Greece and Turkey were charged nominal prices for exactly the same kind of military supplies for which we charged China replacement prices. At any rate, that is what the figures seem to look like. It would be beneficial all around if some congressional committee went into this question in detail to discover precisely how this figure was reached.

Korea is an attractive case in point. During this five-year period, Korea received $300 million, which is the amount that all the American republics put together received from us.

The entire subject of foreign aid needs to be studied closely to see how the money was spent, what our bookkeeping procedure is. For instance, if we charge China one price for an airplane and Great Britain another price, the aid is of different value. Most of the aid was given in the form of commodities rather than money. Most of it was really commercial credits.

Of the $26 billion spent in this way, the ERP countries received $19 billion. It would again be interesting to have that figure analyzed by a body that could subpoena the books of ECA. For whereas no one questions the integrity of Paul Hoffman or his associates in ECA, the policies pursued would make a tremendous difference.

Let me put it this way: These figures do not include any aid to Soviet Russia, and the assumption must be that none was given by the United States. However, Great Britain has been doing a roaring business with Russia and the satellite countries. To what extent have American credits to Great Britain made it possible for the British to engage in this trade? Is it not possible that by this indirect means the British actually released American credits to our enemy, Russia?

We know from Korean references that the Russians and Chinese Communists supplied the North Koreans with munitions of American origin. If we have been supplying neither the Russians nor the Soviet Chinese, nor giving them credits to buy here, where did they get the stuff? It could not have been done by American merchants and American Steamship Lines, some of which ran the Nationalist blockade. An analysis of Hong Kong business with Soviet China and with other anti-American groups would not surprise the old-Chinese hand, but it should startle the admirers of British justice in this country.

CHILD VICTIMS OF FIRE

THE NEWS is full of reports of helpless children burned to death in fires which sweep their homes. Often they have been left alone, usually asleep, to perish because there is no one to save them.

Many fires start in faulty heating apparatus, or are caused by explosions caused by makeshift or inadequate facilities. Scores have died in this manner in recent weeks. More will perish before the Winter ends.

It is the duty of every parent to guard against fire in every way possible. And it is equally important, or more so, to guard the home at all times and never to leave children alone.

Facts About High Blood Pressure

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOUGH high blood pressure has been found in connection with as many as 60 different conditions, its primary cause is still unknown. It may well be that when we learn the full story of this disorder, which today forms our most pressing medical problem, we shall find that it is produced not by one factor, but by many.

Certain cases of high blood pressure are undoubtedly due to kidney disturbances, but beyond that we know little of its cause. As always where the cause of a disease remains unknown, treatment is often unsatisfactory. Nonetheless, with diet, drugs, surgery, and wise adjustment of the patient's mental and emotional outlook, much can be done to bring about improvement.

Ideas Have Changed

Our ideas of diet in high blood pressure have changed considerably of late. Years ago, patients with high blood pressure were advised not to use red meats and to curtail the amount of all meats which they consumed. There is no evidence that such treatment is of any value. In fact, the cutting down of the proteins, particularly those from meat, may weaken the patient generally, without doing his high blood pressure any good.

If a person is overweight, he should, of course, reduce. The limitation of salt in the diet does seem to be of value. Otherwise, the patient should eat a well-balanced diet supplying all the necessary food parts. He should be cautioned, however, not to take an excessive amount of food. Insofar as drugs are concerned, sedatives, such as the barbiturates, are helpful. Drugs which relax or dilate the blood vessels also may be of benefit. Certain drugs, such as tetraethylammonium chloride, block the nerves which, in turn, stop the narrowing of the blood vessels. In occasional cases, such treatment may also be found useful.

Cutting the Nerves

As far as surgery is concerned, operations for cutting the nerves to the blood vessels are performed and bring about decreases in the blood pressure for a period of years in some cases. Such treatment is not successful in all patients, and a thorough study is needed in every instance before operation is carried out, to determine whether or not there is a possibility of its being of help.

Dr. James H. Hutton of Chicago believes that there may be some relation between high blood pressure and disturbances of the glands of internal secretion. Excessive secretion from the pituitary, located at the base of the brain, is accompanied by high blood pressure. The same is true of excessive secretion from the thyroid gland. Dr. Hutton thinks that X-ray treatments over the pituitary and adrenal glands may result in reduction of blood pressure in many patients.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. E. S.: My little daughter, six years of age, has a fast heart beat. Is there anything that can be done for this?

Answer: Rapid heart beat in a child requires a careful investigation. It may be due to rheumatic fever which has affected the heart. On the other hand, the rapid heart beat could come from other causes, such as infections anywhere in the body. The normal heart rate in a child of six is from 100 to 120 beats a minute.

SYNOPSIS

Declared mentally ill after the mysterious death of her husband, Glendon Coldfield, Mrs. Sylvia Goldfield, is held literally a prisoner in the misty old mansion of her in-laws, located in New York's Hudson valley.

CHAPTER TWO

WHEN the nurse came back, the patient was sitting in an armchair, her head back, her eyes closed. She looked quite peaceful. "Mustn't brood, you know," said the nurse brightly. "Have to be cheerful and get well." She switched on two lamps. "Tea's coming."

"Doctor Dalgren said I was well."

The nurse frowned heavily. "It's Doctor Smyth's case now."

"Of course. Silly of me."

"How about tea downstairs? Make a change," She added. "They're all out, every last one of 'em."

The patient smiled. "Yes, I know."

"That party at the Watertons, that ought to be something! Too bad you had to miss that."

"In any case I couldn't have gone. I'm in mourning."

The nurse, taken aback a little, said after a pause, "Well, it's only a family party after all. It's all right for them to go to that."

"It's all right to go to anything, if you feel like going."

"That's what I say. Come on now, take an interest! Let's go downstairs for tea, and then out for a walk."

Mrs. Coldfield said as if in slight surprise, "But what if callers?"

This was in bad taste, execrable taste. The nurse said stiffly, "They won't come in the library—Mr. Ira's little library." She added, "You're not well enough to see strangers."

"I can see that it wouldn't do."

"Now don't be naughty. I want to tell the doctor that you're ever so much better."

Mrs. Coldfield turned to look at the nurse steadily. She asked, "Well enough to travel?"

The nurse returned the look. There was a question in her eyes, too. But after a moment she said loudly, "Doctor Smyth is a very experienced man, he has a big reputation in this vicinity. All the big people have him, and he has ten times the medical knowledge of these psychiatrists."

Mrs. Coldfield said, "I'll have tea upstairs, if you don't mind."

There was a long silence. The nurse thought: It's none of my business.

business, Smyth knows his job. But what did she do?

"You mean you think there's anything crazy about that letter?"

Gamadge's tone was flat and incredulous. He had not taken the clients' chair in his friend Maccloud's law office, but had pulled up a hard straight one, and was sitting on Maccloud's right, across the corner of the desk. He had taken his cigarette out of his mouth, and was pointing with it at some papers laid out on the blotter.

There was an envelope that had been through the mails; it was addressed to Gamadge in a firm, clear hand. There were two crossword diagrams, one entirely filled in with pencilled letters, the other partially so. There was a typed, punctuated transcript of their message. There was a sheet of note-paper, covered with Gamadge's scrawled writing.

"Fifty-fifty," said Maccloud, "but we have no evidence."

"No evidence..." Gamadge repeated the words without inflection. He looked up, around the room, out of the window that gave him a large view of skyscrapers and April sky.

Maccloud, with a saturnine look at him, picked up the typed transcript of the message, and said judiciously, "I've changed my mind. There's a distinct flavor of persecution mania—the odds from where I sit are two to one." He added, "Why not wait until Hamish reports, before we bet on it? You say he's calling this Dalgren for you. I'm willing to give you a break."

Gamadge said, "Just read it again."

"And you still have to see Mrs. Y. E. A. Blagdon, whoever she is. I'll give you Mrs. Blagdon, too." He added with amused curiosity: "I don't know how you wangled the appointment, in the face of your client's restrictions."

"I said Clara and I wanted news of Sylvia Coldfield," Gamadge looked at him disgustedly. "My client has a little more imagination than you have. Why don't you really read the thing?"

Maccloud did so, aloud:

From what O. Femeay has told me, I thought you might imagine some way to get me out of this place quietly. I do not see the end, and shall never have any other chance to communicate. Consult Dr. Dalgren for case history only. Mrs. Y. E. A. Blagdon for background only. Nurse has supper of eight.

Sylvia Goldfield.

Then he said, "Of course you did dig up a little something; but it's all in favor of my theory. Want a summing up?"

"Go to it. I'd like to hear it."

Maccloud separated Gamadge's scrawled notes from the other papers. "Let's see. Amos Coldfield, kind of a literary character from what the book says about his chums. Ira Coldfield. Mrs. Ira, born Georgette Soames. Glendon Coldfield. Mrs. Glendon, born Sylvia Haynes. Miss Susan Coldfield, belongs to the Ira couple." All seem to live together at The Maples, Cliffside, which town as we all know is a little way up river, west. This, he looked around at Gamadge, "means that your client is married and living in the bosom of her family. Sounds as if she were comfortably circumstanced. And she can send out letters—if you call that piece of mystification there a letter."

"She has no writing paper," remarked Gamadge, "and the envelope was mailed to me yesterday—Tuesday—in New York. From this neighborhood downtown."

"Somebody mailed it for her in New York," said Maccloud patiently. "As for the form of her message, it simulates a code or cryptogram, but it's clear. Just a childish attempt to mystify you, and by gum she succeeded."

"She succeeded," Gamadge said, "She has a nurse on that third floor back, and you could fool a nurse pretending to do a crossword puzzle. The envelope is cheap grade paper, with no return address on it. Perhaps she stole it out of the nurse's bag."

"And who mailed it for her? Well, that doesn't matter; we don't even know that she's sequestered up there. Dalgren, you tell me, is a top flight specialist, with a big institute near Albany."

"Hamish told me when I rang him this morning. He knows all about Dalgren; he was perfectly willing to call him up for me."

"Speaking non-professionally, I'd say we didn't even need his report for you. Under Dalgren's care, she's back home and she's had a relapse. Delusions. Don't they always want to get away from wherever they are? It's a symptom," said Maccloud cheerfully. "She heard about you from Caroline Fenway, and she's elected you to help out with the charade. Speaking professionally, I wouldn't touch it with a barge-pole. Family affair—keep away from them."

MARCH OF EVENTS

WASHINGTON—The American Farm Bureau Federation is waging a consistent and vigorous fight against any reimposition of government controls on prices and wages.

For weeks, President Allen B. Kline and other spokesmen for the largest of the big farm organizations have been hammering away with their claim that price-wage ceilings will not attack the problem of inflation at its roots.

They want the government to go along with its present program of tightening up on credit, cutting down non-military spending and increasing taxes. Kline's apparent chief anxiety is that price ceilings would place the farmer in an impossible position cost-wise.

Although commodity prices have boomed slightly in recent weeks, the farmers contend they still fail to compensate for increased operating costs in many instances.

Spokesmen for the farm organization are also fearful that if ceilings on food are ultimately imposed, the farmer will feel the major pinch if any unfavorable roll-back date is selected.

One of the major battles in the incoming 82nd Congress may revolve around President Truman's efforts to obtain power enough to clamp price controls on food.

Under the present Economic Control Law, it is virtually impossible for the President to order ceilings on food prices without violating the law.

If as anticipated he asks Congress to amend the law to give him that power, he is expected to run headlong into a clash with the farm bloc in Congress.

As now written, the law forbids any price ceilings on any food commodity for which farmers are receiving less than parity—or the so-called "fair" price, and most farm products are now less than parity.

The farm bloc in the House and Senate would wage a last-ditch fight against any plan which would limit the farmer's income directly or indirectly.

The main hope of the White House would come from support of congressmen from the larger cities and from pro-labor members who would back any effort to keep food costs for consumers from soaring.

PLANE PRODUCTION—It is doubtful whether the aircraft industry will be able to meet President Truman's demand for a five-fold increase in production in the next 12 months—without a sizable assist from the government.

A spokesman for the industry points out that the best the planemakers were able to do during World War II was to triple their output inside of a year.

Adm. Dewitt Ramsey, president of the Aircraft Industries association, claims that the 400 per cent increase asked by the President can only be attained by maximum co-operation and support on the part of supplying industries and government agencies.

Ramsey asks for speedy award of military contracts and defense priorities so that the expansion of the industry can be started without delay. He says a training program for new aircraft workers must be started immediately.

Little Surprise To Most Buyers, But Food Prices Have Hit All-Time High

Bureau Gives Full Summary

Pickaway County housewives had the proof of the pudding Wednesday. And their dwindling food budgets showed it.

It came with release of retail food price summaries by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics concerning food prices in the Columbus area. And, for the most part, food prices in Columbus and Pickaway County are identical.

Briefly the summary said prices had reached an all-time high. To most housewives, it was not surprising.

The bureau in Washington, which completed a survey in Columbus and seven other cities over the nation, said an increase of 1.2 percent between Dec. 15 and Jan. 2 was enough to establish a record one percent higher than the previous peak of July 15, 1948.

The price index on Jan. 2 was estimated at 218.9 percent of the 1935-39 average, based on a survey of 50 foods in eight cities. That was 1.2 percent above Dec. 15 and 6.9 percent above June 15, prior to the Korean war.

Coffee went up 1.8 percent above the Dec. 15 level and egg prices dropped 14.2 percent for their 30-year high of the same date.

The largest price increase was 4.7 percent for fats and oils, with shortening up seven percent, margarine six percent, lard five-and-a-half percent and salad dressing one percent.

Butter and cheese prices rose five percent, while fresh and evaporated milk rose to two-and-a-half percent. Prices of meats, poultry and fish increased 1.7 percent as a group, although chickens taken alone dropped 0.6 percent.

Fruit and vegetables averaged 2.1 percent higher. Larger increases occurred for cabbage, 31 percent and fresh tomatoes 23 percent. Canned fruit and vegetables were 2.1 percent higher.

Cereals and bakery products rose 2.9 percent to a new record high as bread prices zoomed four percent.

Scioto Valley Grange's New Chiefs Installed

5 tablespoons fat
1 medium-sized onion, chopped
2 green peppers, sliced
1 pound hamburger
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, well beaten
2 cups canned corn
4 medium tomatoes, sliced
1/2 cup dried bread crumbs
Melt 4 tablespoons fat in a skillet and saute onion and peppers for 3 minutes. Add meat and seasonings. Remove from heat. Stir in eggs and mix well. Place 1 cup of corn in a baking dish, then half the meat mixture, then a layer of sliced tomatoes. Repeat. Cover with crumbs. Dot with remaining fat. A major new test for British Socialism has arisen unexpectedly today from the conversations on Western European defense being carried out by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The British have told him of vast increases in military appropriations which they are planning even in advance of military assistance from the United States.

And it has become clear that to finance this project, the government must cut down on Socialistic expenditures. How this will sit with a people now accustomed to governmental assistance in virtually every phase of life is problematical.

To be sure, there is less skepticism about Britain's willingness to make sacrifices for defense against Communism than there is about that of other European nations.

In all probability the government is prepared to enforce whatever new obligations fall due upon the people.

But it cannot be said that the nation as a whole is yet wholeheartedly in favor of rearmament and military service.

The first round-the-world solo airplane flight was made by Wiley Post in July, 1933.

air force is still far below expectations.

IN AN EFFORT to increase it, the government has raised soldiers' pay and has made a great effort to popularize service.

Barrack life has been noticeably improved. Food is better, uniforms are good and there is a great deal of propaganda to the effect that military service is not only a duty to the country but can be a pleasant and lucrative career.

Yet the response has been spotty and Britain is going to have to dig into the Class Z of enlisted reserves who saw service in the last war.

This is a step the government has been loath to take.

It is well remembered how all Britons knew the horror of World War II at first hand and how they shared the terrible suffering and privation brought about by aerial bombardment.

Therefore many leaders think that men called up out of the blitz to serve overseas in World War II should be used as little as possible in the present preparations.

But Britain has committed herself to supply a very considerable number of men at great cost.

If the plan does not meet with the popular approval that is hoped for, the government of Prime Minister Attlee may face a tough period.

A few weeks ago, when Britain was faced with a coal shortage, Attlee summoned trade union leaders and virtually ordered them to produce an additional three million tons by April.

IT WAS REPORTED then that Attlee told the union leaders that his government could not survive in power during another coal shortage like that of 1947.

This placed the unionists in a difficult position. Either they had to get the workers to speed up or risk seeing much nationalization go by the board if the Attlee regime were thrown out of office and succeeded by a conservative one.

The rearmament issue is not a precise parallel. But it points up the fact that the Socialist regime remains in a precarious position.

It is dependent for its existence upon the rank and file who have benefited in varying degrees from Socialism.

If these people are submitted to extra hardships there is always the chance of a popular upheaval. The Conservatives, of course, back rearmament for defense against Russia.

But they can always present the argument, provable or otherwise, that not only can Britain be armed more economically than is being done but that the whole government system should be overhauled.

Winston Churchill and others have predicted national bankruptcy if this is not done in any case. The Labor government tried to disprove this contention by an agreement ending Marshall Plan aid from the United States well in advance of the scheduled date, but the opposition says this merely means higher taxation.

Defense armament of Europe is supposed to be a material and spiritual undertaking divorced from politics. This, however, is proving impossible in Britain and elsewhere.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Teen Tips

A big, black "Unpopular!" mark on girls' date lists goes to boys who——Won't talk when they're with girls—just mumble "yes" or "no," and never add a sentence to help keep the conversation rolling. A date with the "strong, silent type" is too much like work to be fun. Most girls say, "Never again!" unless he's willing to make an effort to be sociable and do his share of talking.

—Won't dance. To most girls, dancing is an important part of high school fun and a girl who dates a boy who won't learn to dance well enough to enjoy it feels she's missing too much fun. If you've got two feet, you can learn, boys; you don't have to be a Fred Astaire to go to the junior prom.

—Give every girl they date a big, romantic line, making her think they like her more than they do—then suddenly do a disappearing act. This leaves the bewildered girl wondering "What happened?" Keep it casual and friendly, boys, if you want to be popular.

—Show off—try to explain the atomic bomb and get ridiculously tangled up. Be yourself and you'll make a better impression.

—Want to park or neck too much, asking for trouble. Most girls know there's a big difference between a goodnight kiss with a boy they like and a prolonged session in a parked car on a dark, lonely road with any boy who happens to feel like it.

—Always want "one more dance" or "one more string" when it's time to take his date home.

Arts Building Plans To Be Readied Soon

Plans and specifications for the proposed new industrial arts building in Circleville may be ready for bidding in early February.

Circleville board of education met Tuesday with Architect F. E. Glass of Columbus to discuss the plans for the new structure.

Glass told the education panel that he may have the final plans

World War 1 Vet Praises Hadacol

HADACOL Supplies Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron Which His System Lacked.

This little space is to be read by those folks who are always wishing they'd feel better. Now, this business of wishing for "this" and wishing for "that" is all right. It sort of makes a person look to the future. But it is a mighty sorry state of affairs when folks keep wishing and wishing they would feel better. That just doesn't get the job done. Take Leo D. Fisher, 901 Charles Street, St. Joseph, Missouri, for example. He just didn't wish he would feel better—he did something about it. He took HADACOL, and says he feels just fine for Mr. Fisher found that taking HADACOL helped his system overcome deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains.

Here is Mr. Fisher's own statement: "I am a veteran of World War I. I have had stomach distress and was nervous and could not sleep. I had no appetite and could not eat any fried foods. I started taking HADACOL. I have taken 8 small bottles and now I am on my second large bottle. I eat anything. I feel fine and sleep good, thanks to HADACOL. I have recommended HADACOL to many people and they are taking it. I am a booster, for I cannot do without it." (C) 1950, The LeBlanc Corporation and specifications available for board approval by Feb. 6.

During the Tuesday session, the board agreed to install three coal-burning boilers in the proposed new building.

Only one boiler will be required to heat the proposed new industrial arts building, although the other two will be added to provide a heating plant for the proposed new $475,000 gymnasium, expected to be located at the rear of the arts building.

Glass was told to prepare the plans with the two boilers included as alternates in the bidding.

Meanwhile, the education panel also agreed that fluorescent lighting will be used in the new structure, stating preference for

PERFECT CRIME; NO PROFIT

Infamous Brink's Holdup Occurred Just Year Ago

BOSTON, Jan. 17—A year ago today eight desperate but carefully-rehearsed men staged the biggest and most successful armed robbery in history—a "perfect crime" according to police.

But this "perfect crime," authorities are convinced, to this day has benefitted the unknown eight very little, possibly not at all.

The crime that still baffles the FBI, Boston and Massachusetts state police and the shrewdest insurance investigators in the business was the holdup of the Brink's armored car service garage in Boston on the night of Jan. 17, 1950.

In 20 minutes the silent, efficient bandit gang scooped up and made off with the greatest cash haul by robbers in American criminal history—$1,247,000. They took an additional $300,000 in non-negotiable checks.

SINCE THAT NIGHT the robbers, and their loot, have been hunted without letup throughout the country. Every known criminal haunt has been watched and checked. An army of 3,000 city, state and federal police, plus picked insurance company crime-hunters, has never eased its pressure.

But to this day—a full year later—not one robber has been found, or even identified. And not one identifiable dollar of the loot—police are sure—has been spent. Despite the most vigilant check by authorities, not a single bill has been recovered out of the close to half a ton of currency and checks taken.

The bandits, police believe, either are following careful plans to lay low "until the heat is off," or they are too scared to start the spending spree they must have envisioned the night they made off with their huge haul.

Authorities admit they are no closer to catching the gang today than they were a few hours after the robbery. They have grinded more than 1,200 suspects and possible leads to 5 suspects. They have traced down 5,000 letters, telephone calls, "confessions" and tips—without learning anything that could bring an arrest.

The gunmen left no clues, not even their fingerprints, so expertly was the million dollar robbery planned. They vanished as though they had stepped off Earth.

JAMES F. DALEY, deputy superintendent of the Boston police department in charge of the puzzle, says: "We are stalemated." A veteran of 32 years of police service, Daley added:

"They talk about the perfect crime. If this isn't the perfect crime I'll never live to see it. We're at a dead end. We can only grasp at straws."

A total of $300,000 already has been spent in efforts to crack the case and rewards totalling $160,850 have been offered.

Attorney General Francis E. Kelley offered immunity to any of the bandits willing to turn informer.

The police even went to the underworld for help. But nothing has come of the thousands of man-hours spent in trying to track down the bandits.

The known facts of the case are simple: On that Tuesday night, Jan. 17 of last year, at 7:10 p. m., eight bandits, wearing Halloween masks, slipped into the Brink's garage in Boston through a door on the Prince Street side.

They went through two doors to the second floor and unlocked a third door which led directly into the cashier's office where Brink's had its main vault.

There they overpowered, bound and gagged five employees: Cashier Thomas B. Lloyd of Braintree, Joseph D. Allen of Rosindale, Sherman D. Smith of Somerville, Herman E. Pfaff of Cambridge and Charles D. Grell of Arlington.

THE BANDITS then went to work transferring bundles of cash into laundry bags which they had brought with them. The heavy white canvas bags were quickly loaded into a waiting truck.

Because the masked gunmen got to the vault rooms so quickly and executed the holdup with such clocklike precision, investigators at first leaned to the theory it must have been an inside job. Daley refuses to say now whether this theory has been discarded.

When the bandits left, they took along four pistols belonging to the guards. Several weeks later two of the stolen pistols were found by small boys on the shore of Mystic river in Somerville, a Boston suburb.

Police also found the torch-burned parts of a new Ford delivery truck in a dump in Stoughton, some 20 miles south of Boston.

They think the burned parts came from a new truck stolen in Boston several days before the Brink's robbery. This truck could have been used for the getaway, but it hasn't been proved.

The tedious man-hunt has had one good result, says Daley. It has given police the most complete record ever assembled, factual and pictorial, of about 1,200 hoodlums, bad men and potential killers, who had been rounded up for questioning.

But that's all. For all they know, police say the Brink's bandits may have taken a rocket to Mars.

Ordinances Passed On Container, N&W Agreements With This City

Circleville city council passed two ordinances during its regular session Tuesday night. They were:

1. A bill fixing the rates to be charged Container Corporation of America for sewage treatment for 1951.

2. An ordinance authorizing Mayor Thurman I. Miller to sign an agreement with Norfolk and Western Railway for an easement for a sanitary sewer.

The bill fixing sewage rates for Container Corporation sets them at $500 a month. A section of the ordinance provides for the hiring of an engineer to make a survey of the company sewage treated by city to determine the amount that should be paid for the treatment.

The section was inserted after a council committee met with representatives of the company last week to discuss the rate question.

COUNCILMAN George Crites explained that the hiring of an engineer to investigate the problem was agreed upon as the best method of providing a cure for the annual bickering over rates. He said the engineer could be hired at any time during 1951.

The ordinance authorizing an agreement for an easement over Norfolk and Western Railway property paves the way for possible installation of a sanitary sewer servicing Circleville's northend.

The agreement provides the easement without cost to the

Telephone Gear Shortage Feared By Local Chief

Pickaway Countians may have to do without the telephones they want during the period of shortages and uncertainties which seems to lie ahead.

Edwin Jury, manager of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. in Circleville, said Wednesday that instruments apparently are getting scarce.

"We're still taking orders," said Jury. "We have a definite shortage of instruments here, but have several hundred on order."

The manager added that telephones are being installed for everyone with whom agreements have been made.

TV-Radio Programs

Programs listed in the following television log contain errors daily, the fault resting entirely with broadcasters and not with The Herald. Intent of this newspaper is to provide accurate information for subscribers, but finds this impossible so far as the three Columbus television stations are concerned. The programs printed are assembled from information sent out by the Columbus stations and are not to be regarded seriously. Complaints about inaccuracies in program listings should be made to the broadcasting stations and not to The Herald. Because of continuing inaccuracies, The Herald has been forced to delete all TV programs prior to 6 p. m. Radio programs are evening network listings.

STANDOUTS DEFY PATTERN

Maybe Great Golf Stars
Are Just Born That Way

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Championship golfers must be born that way and cannot be manufactured out of their own resolute efforts like some other athletes.

This seems to be proved occasionally when a standout defies all the seeming requirements of playing winning golf against other stars, and comes through with a championship.

There are several notable incidents of triumphs by players who were sick, or injured or soft from long layoffs. They were handicapped physically and mentally, but belted out guys who were enjoying the best of health and golfing scores.

Like Byron Nelson's recent win in the Bing Crosby tournament on the West Coast despite his retirement from competition

Gomer Jones
Would Like
Fesler's Job

COLUMBUS, Jan. 17—Gomer Jones, All-America center for Ohio State in 1935 and now a line coach at the University of Oklahoma, is "definitely interested" in the head coach slot at Ohio State vacated by Wesley Fesler.

Jones said yesterday from St. Clairsville that he spoke about the appointment to Assistant Buckeye Coaches Dick Fisher, Esco Sarkkinen, Loyal Clark and Ernie Godfrey during the recent National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting in Dallas.

Jones said he had not applied for the job, nor had he talked with Athletic Director Dick Larkins, but said he might come to Columbus and talk with the OSU athletic director.

The ex-Buck, who also is assistant athletic director at Oklahoma, arrived yesterday in St. Clairsville to visit his father-in-law, Judge John C. Nicols.

Ohio State spokesmen said an athletic board meeting slated for tonight in Columbus is the "routine monthly session" of that group and a new coach will not be named. A special screening committee, however, will present its initial report concerning his progress in the coach hunt.

Bill Holland
Sacked By AAA

DETROIT, Jan. 17—Auto Racer Bill Holland, 1949 winner of the Indianapolis 500 Mile Race, was banned today from entering the Memorial Day classic this year.

The American Auto Association contest board in a meeting last night ruled that Holland had violated association rules by participating in an unauthorized stock car race last November.

Since only triple-A drivers are eligible to compete at Indianapolis, Holland's suspension will keep him from entering the speed classic next May.

OSU Football
Star Killed

NEWARK, Jan. 17 — Howard Wedebrook, 36-year-old varsity halfback on Ohio State's football teams of 1936, '37 and '39, was killed yesterday in Newark when he fell from a scaffold.

Newark police said Wedebrook, who was working atop a smokestack at the Newark city waterworks, apparently died of a crushed skull when he fell 75 feet, head first, into a pile of bricks.

A graduate of Portsmouth high school, Wedebrook was working for the Heinicke Construction Co. of Indianapolis.

Broncos Break
Losing Streak;
Win By 43-31

Ashville Broncos basketball team broke a two-game losing streak Tuesday night with a 43-31 victory over Darby Trojans on the Bronco home court.

Losing in quick succession to Walnut Township and New Holland, the Broncos went all out in the final quarter of its Tuesday encounter to break the losing streak.

The Ashvillers opened the fracas with an 8-6 edge over the Trojan invaders while posting a 20-13 advantage at halftime.

Darby pressed back in the third period, however, to threaten from the short end of a 27-23 tally, although Ashville ripped ahead in the final frame with a flurry of scoring to post the 12-point victory.

CHARLES MESSICK paced his Broncos in the win with a total of 12 points during the match. Darby's Ronald Kennard won game honors by tallying a total of 15 points for his losing Trojan team.

Darby reserves continued their winning ways in the preliminary contest by scoring an easy 25-12 victory over the Bronco juniors.

Summary of the contest, a makeup league tilt, follows:

'Cats Register
54-43 Win Over
Laurelville '5

Jackson Wildcat basketball team invaded at Laurelville Tuesday night to score a comfortable 54-43 win over its host.

The 'Cats shot into an early lead during the fracas with a 9-2 first period advantage, following through with a 29-17 halftime margin.

Jackson continued to blast the home team during the third stanza to mark a 41-25 lead, although the home towners pulled through in the final frame to creep upward.

Bob Hoover was the power behind the Jackson attack in the contest, netting a total of 16 points for game honors.

Laurelville reserves trimmed the Jackson subs in the preliminary encounter by a 36-20 final score.

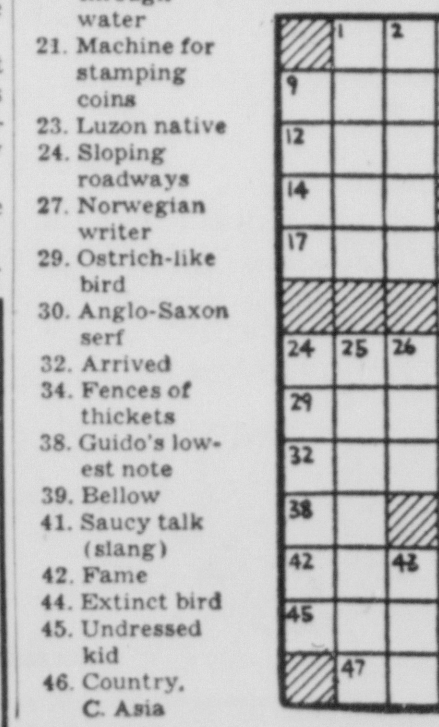

Summary of the varsity encounter follows:

Jackson	G	F	T
Hoover	6	4	16

Penn Admits
Trouble Brews

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17 — The University of Pennsylvania admitted today that it is having schedule difficulties with other Ivy League clubs and laid the "real reason" to the fact that it will play Notre Dame in 1952.

President Harold E. Stassen issued a formal statement to answer reports that all Ivy League clubs except Cornell would boycott Penn football teams after the 1952 season. Stassen said:

"It is my understanding that the real reason for the schedule difficulty is that some athletic officials object to Pennsylvania's anticipated game with Notre Dame in 1952."

Warrior Cagers
Lose By 79-50
At Hamilton

Saltcreek Warriors cagers were handed a 79-50 loss Tuesday night when they invaded at Hamilton Township.

The Warrior quintet held its own in the first half of the tilt, trailing only 24-18 and 38-30 at the first two period ends.

Hamilton zipped ahead in the third frame to tally a 63-38 edge over the locals, however, following through with the final 79-50 margin.

Carl Strous paced the Saltcreek pack in the fracas with a total of 12 points, although Emmett Cannon and Oliver Field tallied 20 each for the winning club.

SALT CREEK reserves also were defeated in the preliminary match, losing to the Hamilton subs by a narrow 29-27 margin.

Box score of the varsity engagement follows:

Special Course
May Be Taught
In Horse Racing

LEXINGTON, Jan. 17—A proposed course in horse racing and breeding may find prospective trainers, breeders and turf writers attending special classes at the University of Kentucky.

Nevill Dunn, editor and publisher of Thoroughbred Record, told members of the Henry Waterson Press Club yesterday in Lexington that horse breeders and owners will sponsor such a course.

Dunn stated that he had talked to Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of the university, and that Dr. Donovan had given verbal approval.

The course would be presented to aid the training of turf writers, trainers and breeders.

Dunn said: "There are so many fine things to racing that the public never hears about."

Circleville Enters Traffic Safety Contest For 1951

Mayor Says Cooperation Is Needed

'Honorable Mention' Won For 7 Years

Joining with other Ohio municipalities in the traffic safety program, Circleville has been enrolled in the Ohio Traffic Safety Contest for 1951 by Mayor Thurman I. Miller.

In entering this community, which has won honorable mentions for seven years in the contest, Mayor Miller pledged:

"Realizing that cooperative action by all governmental groups and individual citizens is necessary to carry on an effective program of traffic accident prevention, our city will lend every assistance possible to help make Ohio the Safest State."

The Ohio Traffic Safety Council, which sponsors the contest with the active support of the Ohio Department of Highways, pointed out:

"Traffic safety is all-important at this time, as evidenced by the motor vehicle accident problem that is resulting from the increasing use of the streets and highways."

"Every indication is that the number of men, women and children killed in traffic will continue to be too high unless accident prevention activities are made effective through every means that human ingenuity can devise and that organized group action can further."

THE OHIO TRAFFIC Safety Contest is for cities of 4,000 or more population. The cities are divided into seven population classifications and awards are made in each of these classifications to the communities showing the greatest traffic safety improvement for the year.

The seven population classes into which the Contest is divided are: (1) 300,000 and over; (2) 100,000 to 300,000; (3) 50,000 to 100,000; (4) 25,000 to 50,000; (5) 10,000 to 25,000; (6) 5,000 to 10,000; (7) 4,000 to 5,000.

Groupings are made on the basis of the preliminary figures of the 1950 federal census.

Circleville was awarded honorable mention in the population group of 5,000 to 10,000 in the traffic safety contest in 1947-48, 48-49, 49-50 and 50-51.

The winning cities in the contest for 1950 will be announced after March 15, deadline for submitting reports.

2 Generals Get 3-Star Rank

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—President Truman has nominated two major generals in Korea for promotion to lieutenant general.

The nominations, which were sent to the Senate, would give the three-star rank to Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the 10th Corps, and Maj. Gen. John B. Coulter, commander of the Ninth Corps.

Mr. Truman also nominated Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther to be chief of staff to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the Atlantic Pact defense forces. Eisenhower earlier announced Gruenther's selection.

Egbert's Trial Is Scheduled For Feb. 21

Earl Egbert, 36, faces trial Feb. 21 in Sacramento, Calif., superior court on charges he killed his wife with a penknife last Dec. 5.

At his arraignment this week, Egbert, through his attorney, Arthur De Beau Carr of Sacramento, pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

The state contends Egbert plunged his pocket knife into his wife's throat at the Sacramento home of his mother during a family discussion of Christmas plans.

The victim had just returned from a trip to Columbus where she had spent a month visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hegele.

At the time of his arrest police said Egbert told them he killed his wife, a Circleville high school graduate, because of her connection with a narcotics ring whose members "were out to get me."

Egbert was later examined by a psychiatrist who asserted the accused slayer is not criminally insane.

Pat Just Never Gives Up On Bill

COLUMBUS, Jan. 17—One thing you gotta say for State Rep. Pat Dunn, Tuscarawas County Democrat, he never gives up trying.

For the eighth time, Pat—everybody calls the veteran lawmaker by his first name—again introduced his bill to prohibit the employment of both husband and wife by the state.

The bill has been either ignored or defeated seven previous times. Last session the house, as a gesture of respect to Dunn, passed the measure, only to have it die in the senate.

JP Is Willing To Return Favor

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Magistrate Eugene R. Canudo believes one good turn deserves another.

Robert J. McCullough, 26, a laboratory assistant, explained he was driving 80 miles an hour on Henry Hudson Parkway because he was "trying to give the cops a good time."

The traffic court judge said, "now it's the city's turn to entertain you—in the cooler."

He set a record bail of $5,500 and when McCullough failed to put up the money, he was jailed pending trial Jan. 23.

Liner Checked For Flu Bug

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—Fifty-five cases of influenza were discovered aboard the Cunard Liner Mauretania which docked yesterday with 815 passengers from channel ports.

The United States Public Health Service is examining incoming passengers with special care because of the influenza epidemic in England.

Dr. Henry M. Friedman, senior surgeon, said none of the passengers was seriously ill. He minimized the danger that the disease could be spread by the passengers because the incubation period had passed.

Dewey Endorses Defense Budget

ALBANY, Jan. 17—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has endorsed President Truman's tremendous budget outlays for defense, but called on Congress to repudiate Mr. Truman's request for money for social "experiments."

The Republican titular leader listed among objectionable items in the President's budget money for a federal health program and the Brannan farm plan.

Dewey called such matters "experiments on our society" and said in these times they "imperil national unity."

Way Sought By City To Transfer Fund To Hospital Without Bond

Members of Berger hospital board of governors appeared before Circleville city council Tuesday to request transfer of money to the hospital without members of the board being held liable.

The money, approximately $17,000 was left to the city for use by the hospital under the will of Daisy Darst.

Council last year passed a resolution transferring the funds to the board of governors.

The board protested, however, that its members have been requested to sign a receipt for the money. The receipt, prepared by City Solicitor George Gerhardt, would make the board members liable for the funds.

Gerhardt explained that the city treasurer is personally responsible for all money turned over to him, such as the Darst bequest. In requesting the receipt, he continued, the idea was to relieve him of that responsibility once the money leaves his hands.

THE CITY treasurer is under bond for public funds he handles.

Richard Simkins, member of the hospital's board of governors, explained to council that the board has no bonded treasurer, that the expense of bonding a board member would be more than the interest earned by the money. He said the cost of bonding would be about $1,200 a year.

Simkins added that the money would be placed with other funds in a local bank under an account set up so that no one can touch the money until properly designated by the board of hospital commissioners. The account is expected to reach about $300,000 eventually.

He said that although there is no immediate need for the money, since it is to be used for construction purposes, the board was of the opinion that the money should be turned over in order that hospital books can be set up properly.

Simkins added, however, that there is a provision that permits the Darst money to be used for operating expenses until building starts, after which it goes into the construction fund.

Councilman Ray Anderson asked what it was the board wanted council to do about it.

"We have already passed a resolution ordering the city treasurer to turn over the money," he said.

Simkins admitted there was actually nothing more that council could do.

The matter was wound up when Gerhardt said he would make a trip to the state bureau of inspection and examiners.

"If they say the money can be turned over to the board of governors without a finding being made against the treasurer, then we'll do it," he said.

Council carried a motion to divert funds left under the Elizabeth Ruggles will from construction of a maternity ward to general construction purposes.
